Celebrate
GOOD TIMES, COME ON!

Thanks
to community support,

Vulcan Park and Museum celebrated ten years of sharing our region's history, providing educational programs, arts and culture along with 75 years of residing atop Red Mountain and 110 years of standing for Birmingham!

Vulcan's restoration ten years ago galvanized the whole community, but it started because a few people had the courage to take responsibility for Alabama's 110 year old ambassador and Birmingham's symbol of pride. Now our region is getting positive national attention and you can help keep it going by contributing to the annual fund.

Birmingham's Most Popular Attraction

Since, Vulcan Park is still the first place tourists come to visit when in Birmingham; it must present the best image possible. When you give, you ensure that Vulcan, the cast iron statue, along with the beautiful and accessible park and museum represents the community well and impresses guests for the next 110 years. Future generations will be proud of the legacy they receive. This is made possible by gifts from generous supporters.

When you give, you also ensure that excellent programs capture the attention of visitors, including inquisitive young people of the cyber-generation. Vulcan Museum resides atop Red Mountain, but "V" the mascot, travels regularly to meet children in their schools and communities.

LARGEST
East iron STATUE
110
YEARS OLD
56^{FT} TALL

In 2014 donations kept the park grounds beautiful and maintained the museum, tower and cast iron statue that were enjoyed by 125,000+ visitors including 12,000 school children and a record number of public event guests.
